excerpt from the psychology of suggestion a research into the a research into the subconscious nature of man and society the german school with wundt at its head at first started out on similar lines but they could not make any use of the subconscious and their speculations ran wild in the fancies of hartmann the reason of this failure is due to the fact that the concept of the sub conscious as conceived by the german school was extremely vague and had rather the character of a mechanical than that of a psychical process an unconscious consciousness that was their concept of the subconscious in such a form as this the subconscious was certainly meaningless mere nonsense and had to be given up the german psychological investigations are now confined to the content of consciousness in so far as the individual is immediately conscious of it but as this form of consciousness is extremely narrow and circumscribed the results arrived at though remarkable for their thoroughness are after all of a rather trivial nature it is what prof james aptly characterizes the elaboration of the obvious we may therefore with full right assert that it was the french psychologists who made proper use of the sub conscious and arrived at results that are of the utmost importance to psychology although it were well if the french were to conduct their investigations with german thoroughness about the publisher forgotten books publishes hundreds of thousands of rare and classic books find more at forgottenbooks.com this book is a reproduction of an important historical work forgotten books uses state of the art technology to digitally reconstruct the work preserving the original format whilst repairing imperfections present in the aged copy in rare cases an imperfection in the original such as a blemish or missing page may be replicated in our edition we do however repair the vast majority of imperfections successfully any imperfections that remain are intentionally left to preserve the state of such historical works this compelling work brings together an array of distinguished scholars to explore key concepts theories and findings pertaining to some of the most fundamental issues in social life the conditions under which people are kind and helpful to others or conversely under which they commit harmful even murderous acts covered are such topics as the complex interaction of individual societal and situational factors underpinning good or evil behavior the role of guilt and the self concept and issues of responsibility and motivation including why good people do bad things the volume also examines whether aggression and violence are inescapable aspects of human nature and how cooperative interaction can break down stereotyping and discrimination
